

My last vacation was about 1 1/2 weeks ago, when I took an FFA trip to Denver, Colorado. We left March 6, 2008 A.D on two stage liner busses. We Took I-80 all the way to North Platte. Then I had a Runza meal at Runza, and then I went and looked around at Game Stop. After that we all got back onto the busses we rode all the way to Sterling, Colorado for a bathroom break, even though there was a restroom on the bus.

After Sterling, Colorado we went right to Denver, Colorado, to an ice skating rink to go ice skating, but snobbish Colorado kids had to have hockey practice at the exact time we were going to go ice skating. So instead we just went to our hotel to unload our things and a break for a half-in-hour. Afterwards we went to Casa Bonita and had a Mexican feast. Also there were cliff divers, one diver in particular asked the girls if they like his abs, which I thought was very weird. After we were all full of Mexican food we went back to our hotel and went to bed.

The next morning we went to the Denver mint where they make millions and millions of dollars worth of coins per year. After all of that we went to the Hammond Candy Factory where they hand make candies and chocolates. The Hammond Candy Factory is the only one in the world. Then we went to a museum of history of trees, anyway then we went to Celestial Seasonings which is a tea factory. after that we went back to Denver and went and toured Coors Field which is were the Rockies baseball team plays. After the Coors Field we headed over to watch the Nuggets vs. Spurs MBA basketball game, and it was out of sight, literally we had to sit in the highest row.

The next day, the day everyone was waiting for was we went skiing at Loveland. We got there at about 8 o clock, then we rented our ski gear and waited for the ski lifts to start up. Once they did, I started out on the bunny slope start to get warmed up. Then I went on the blues with Connor Majerus, which was awesome, we did that for about 8 hours or so then we went back to the hotel and watched the Mask on HBO.

We woke up at about 7 o clock and ate breakfast at the hotel and then loaded up on the busses and we went home.
